

Concentration Camps

- Used as early as 1933 to eliminate Nazi political opponents
- By 1938 they expand into forced labour camps for the elderly, mentally ill and handicapped
- Two largest groups of prisoners during WWII are Jewish People and Soviet POWs

Conditions in the Camps

- Causes of death include mistreatment, disease, starvation, overwork and execution (if they are considered unfit for labour)
- Prisoners used for medical experiments
- Gas chambers used at death camps, as well as shooting, starvation and torture
