

CASE #1

- The Lord's Day Act
- Up until 1985 it was illegal for most Canadian businesses to be open on Sunday.

CASE #2

- Vriend v. Alberta
- 1998 - Delwin Vriend was dismissed from his position at a private religious college in Edmonton, because of his sexual orientation. He was prevented from making a complaint under the Alberta Individual Rights Protection Act because the legislation did not include sexual orientation as a prohibited ground of discrimination.
