

Official Bilingualism

■ Sections 16 to 20 of the Charter establish French and English as official languages of Canada.

- New Brunswick is the only officially bilingual province.

- Canadians have the right to use either language when communicating with or receiving services from the federal government, so long as there is enough demand for such a service.

Official Bilingualism

- Sections 16 to 20 of the Charter establish French and English as official languages of Canada.
- New Brunswick is the only officially bilingual province.
- Canadians have the right to use either language when communicating with or receiving services from the federal government, so long as there is enough demand for such a service.

Minority Education Rights

- Section 23 of the Charter says that a French-speaking or English-speaking minority population of sufficient size in any province has the right to publicly funded schools that serve their language community.
- What benefits and challenges result from this?