

■ On August 19, 1942 over 6000 Canadian and Newfoundland men infiltrated the German port

- The (reported) objective was to take control of the German port and gather intelligence from prisoners

- The (real) objective was to test Hitler to see if it was possible to land in Europe

■ None of these objectives were successful

- Over half of the men were killed, wounded or captured

- The Allied air forces lost 119 planes and the Royal Navy suffered 555 casualties

- The catastrophe at Dieppe eventually helped the Allies because of many lessons learned

The Deep Raid

Figure 1

The Dieppe Raid

- On August 19, 1942 over 6000 Canadian and Newfoundland men infiltrated the German port

- The (reported) objective was to take control of the German port and gather intelligence from prisoners

- The (real) objective was to test Hitler to see if it was possible to land in Europe

- None of these objectives were successful

- Over half of the men were killed, wounded or captured

- The Allied air forces lost 119 planes and the Royal Navy suffered 555 casualties

- The catastrophe at Dieppe eventually helped the Allies because of many lessons learned

1943 - Invasion of Sicily

- July 9th – August 17th 1943
- Allied forces: US, Britain, Canada
- Axis forces: Germany, Italy
- Goal: To remove Axis naval and air forces from Sicily, allowing free passage to Allied ships in the Mediterranean Sea and to put pressure on Mussolini's regime

