

○ Collective Farms – large scale farms where peasants could pool resources under state control to increase output. Yearly income was to be divided among the farmers who kept their own homes and animals

○ State Farms – tended to be larger than collective farms and were run like agricultural factories

○ Peasant Resistance – did not support collectivization and the Kulaks often burned crops and killed livestock in protest. Stalin used force against this rebellion

קום צו אונדז איז קאלורט!

- Collective Farms – large scale farms where peasants could pool resources under state control to increase output. Yearly income was to be divided among the farmers who kept their own homes and animals
- State Farms – tended to be larger than collective farms and were run like agricultural factories
- Peasant Resistance – did not support collectivization and the Kulaks often burned crops and killed livestock in protest. Stalin used force against this rebellion

ECONOMIC PLANNING
