

In 2010, a Swedish driver, 37, was fined a whopping 1.08 million Swiss francs (£957,000 / $1.2 million) in what is believed to be the largest speeding fine in the world. The Swedish driver, whose Mercedes had a disconnected speedometer, was caught doing 125mph in a 20mph zone.

prices - Principles of Individualism

- Individual Rights and Freedoms
 - Freedom of religion, association, etc.
 - Right to life, liberty and security of persons
 - Right to vote:
 - Who has this right?
 - What factors have been at play in restricting this right in history?