

FREEDOMS OVERRATED (30-1 SPECIAL!)

▶ Edmund Burke reacted to the political issues of the day.

► Horrified by the extremes of the French Revolution, Burke used these as an example of the flaws of following the values of equality, individualism, and freedom.

► Burke believed that established institutions, run by the educated people of society, were necessary to control the irrational passions of the uneducated masses.

► According to Burke, the only reason to make changes to these institutions was to preserve them from the radical or revolutionary change demanded by the masses.

FREEDOM IS OVERRATED (30-1 SPECIAL!)

- Edmund Burke reacted to the political issues of the day.
- Horrified by the extremes of the French Revolution, Burke used these as an example of the flaws of following the values of equality, individualism, and freedom.
- Burke believed that established institutions, run by the educated people of society, were necessary to control the irrational passions of the uneducated masses.
- According to Burke, the only reason to make changes to these institutions was to preserve them from the radical or revolutionary change demanded by the masses.

CLASSIC CONSERVATISM (30-1 SPECIAL)
